Beloved Has Passed Every Step to be FDA 510(k)
Cleared and Continues to be in Ongoing Compliance

Personal lubrication is regulated by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) as a Class II medical device. Class II devices are considered moderate-risk medical devices and are required to have FDA 510(k) Clearance before being manufactured and sold.

The FDA is very rigorous about lube ingredients, how they interact together and the manufacturing process.

It also has tight requirements on the type of packaging that is used and specific content on the packaging including consumer warnings, ingredient listings, expiration dates and boundaries on medical claims.

There is a significant investment in the process of getting cleared and keeping the clearance including intensive testing, record keeping and compliance. Testing includes biocompatibility studies, vaginal irritation, pH sensitization, cytotoxicity, condom compatibility, shelf life testing, yeast and mold count, absence of pathogens and more.

The FDA also has the authority to inspect regulated facilities to verify that they comply with applicable good manufacturing practice regulations.

Some lubes being sold right now are NOT cleared. Some contain harmful ingredients. Some of the companies are quite brazen about it. Others skirt around the issue by not calling their products "lubrication" or not marketing it for sex lubrication. They may use carefully-worded marketing language such as the product can be used to "prep for sex."
